| Produktbeschreibung      | The Protein carbonyl ELISA kit is an antibody-based detection set. It has higher sensitivity, lower background, is less labour-intensive and handles more samples per day as compared to colorimetric assays.... |
| Target-Kategorie         | carbonyl                                                                                                                                                                                                         |
| Anwendungsbeschreibung   | For quantitative determination of carbonylated protein levels in plasma, other body fluids, cell and tissue extracts.                                                                                            |
